To Consider Property Revaluation

Property revaluation is likely to come before the voters once again at Special Town Meeting and the assessors will meet with the selectmen in conference session Monday night to discuss it.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Water Treatment Plant.

The revaluation, or property value equalization program, is something that has been carried out here on more-or-less a 10-year basis, with the first in 1958 and the second in 1967.

A warrant article that would have provided $130,000 for a new program was voted down by the Town Meeting in May, however, and officials estimate that the price tag will be higher this time around.

Selectman Richard J. Bowen Monday night said the program to equalize taxes was overdue, and that he was "sick and tired" of hearing about $90,000 properties that pay less than $900 a year taxes.

He said he has been evaluating real estate ads in the TOWNSMAN and that "one realtor in town" likes to boast about how low taxes are on such properties.

Col. Edward M. Harris said the idea of the article is to equalize incorrect inconsistencies that have developed over the years, and questioned the legal ramifications if revaluation were postponed indefinitely.

The courts have told the State Division of Taxation to go to assessments at "full and fair value."

Town Manager J. Maynard Austin said Tuesday that Andover assessments are "substantially" less than 100 percent. He

Shadows

The deserted railroad station at the Essex Street crossing lent itself to some interesting late summer shadows this week, and was rather symbolic of the town during August as well. But the rush will soon be on, with preparations for the first day of school here Sept. 8.

Guidelines for the reuse of Abbot Academy, which would keep the "visual impact" and "spatial openness" pretty much the same as now, were presented to the selectmen for a first go-around Monday night.

Chairman David Erickson of the planning board said the idea was to take advantage of as many of the "special characteristics" of the site as possible, including as many of the existing buildings as possible, as well as fences, walls, gates, and mature trees.

The planning board has been working with Consultant Philip B. Herr of Boston to set up guidelines which are acceptable to the town and can be used by Phillips Academy as they entertain possible developers of the property. The prep school has already announced its intent to dispose of the old Abbot campus, which lies east of Abbot Street, between School and Phillips streets.

Erickson said they would ideally keep a large area in one ownership, and should not support a zoning change that would allow complete redevelopment for, say, multi-family use.

He said at least two of the basic buildings are reusable, and are important as the central focus of the property from School Street, as well as important

2 Giant Lines To Cross Corner Of West Andover

A seemingly routine matter on Monday's selectmen agenda has put a corner of Andover in the path of a high-power line that will transmit power from the proposed Seabrook, N. H. facility.

After some discussion, the Selectmen granted permission for the New England Power Company to run 345kV lines across Bailey Road and River Road in Andover, as part of a 32-mile leg from the Mass Electric plant in Tewksbury to the New Hampshire line at Hampton.

The lines will be built on standard H-type structures approximately 90 feet high, in the center of a power right of way that presently supports several lines. It will replace existing lines that carry 115kV — the smaller transmitters will be moved toward the outside of the right of way.

Augustin Nicholas, an engineer for Mass Electric, explained the new lines are part of a 1200-mile, 345kV system for New England. He said such major transmission lines are needed to meet anticipated bulk power requirements, and to carry power from Seabrook or some other facility to be built in New England.

The only abutters to the crossings in Andover are William and Ruth Bailey at 1 Bailey Road and Ruth M. Bailey at 2 River Road.

In answer to a question from Selectman Chairman Susan T. Poore, Nicholas said they would meet state Department of Public Utilities requirements, and keep the lines a minimum of 40 feet above the Merrimack River where they cross.

He also noted that poles are placed a minimum of 50 feet back from all highways, allowing a screen of trees to hide them from motorists' view. He said that both River Road and Bailey Road have existing cover, which would be maintained.

The U.S. Department of Labor reports that employment for merchant sailors is expected to decline through the mid-1980's. Some job openings will arise each year, however, due to the need to replace experienced sailors who retire, die, or quit for other reasons.

Town House Topics

EDP Study Underway

The "new" Computer Advisory Committee will have its first session Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Town Hall Conference Room, with more-or-less free reign of what to pursue.

The selectmen Monday night rescinded an earlier "consensus" that the committee was to spend $30,000 appropriated by Town Meeting to update "archaic bookkeeping equipment" with new EDP equipment.

Selectman Philip Salamone felt it would be in everyone's best interest if the committee were given a free hand.

It was also Town Manager J. Maynard Austin's recommendation that the committee be allowed to proceed on a "broad basis," and that other alternatives than the purchase of in-house equipment be explored to meet the needs of both the town and the school committee.

The selectmen also added four appointees to the five previously named members of the committee: Martin R. Arick, 10 Bannister Road; Albert G. DelCheccolo, 29 Mohawk Drive; Sharin Luti, 84 Cross St.; and Harry A. McCormick, 64 Bartlet St. All have DP experience, but none work in computer company sales.

A similar advisory committee existed previously, but recommendations were never acted upon. Both the schools and town now feel the need is critical.

Arbitration Dates Set

The final chapter in the 22-month-old contract negotiations between the town and Andover firefighters will begin Sept. 30 with an arbitration session. The meeting will continue Oct. 11 if necessary.

Three arbitrators will review the best offers of both parties, and choose one. Their decision will be binding.

Paul Dorr will be the neutral arbitrator, with Alan Drachman of the labor law firm of Holtz, Drachman representing the town and Merrill Marshall, a Tewksbury firefighter, representing the firefighters.

Hearing Set For Bridge

A public hearing on the proposed replacing of the Tewksbury Street bridge over the railroad near the Tewksbury line, has been set for Tuesday, Sept. 27 at 7:30 p.m. in Sanborn School.

Town Manager J. Maynard Austin noted Monday night that the design for the bridge and improvements to the approach roadways has been completed.

The bridge was closed not long ago to be re-decked by the state. The state also will foot the bill for the new structure, which is necessary to carry a greater load.

Socially Speaking

The selectmen Monday night granted a one-day, all-alcoholic licenses to the Christian Formation Center for an anniversary party on Sept. 10, a March of Dimes Dance Sept. 17, a wedding reception Sept. 18, and a CFC anniversary party the 24th.

They also approved the closing of Arthur Road, Cindy Lane, Theodore Avenue and Mary Lou Lane for a block party Sept. 10, and granted a request from Andover Hadassah to conduct a walk-a-thon on Main Street, from Shawsheen Plaza to Orchard Street, on Oct. 2.

Street Openings

Permission for street excavations to run gas mains into two new developments was granted to Bay State Gas Co. Monday night, providing the Planning Board gives their okay. The gas lines in question would extend from Lovejoy Road into a new area, and from Orchard Street into Skopelos Circle.

The gas utility was also granted permission to open streets for main repairs at 46-48 York St., School Street at Ridge Street, Carlisle Street, High Plain Road at Juniper and Greenwood Roads, 26 Burnham Road, 5 Porter St. and 18 Harding St.

New England T&T will be burying cable for new service under Bailey Road to Larchmont Circle, and under Orchard Street to Skopelos Circle.

Chiropractic Society Convention

The Massachusetts Chiropractic Society will hold its annual Fall convention Sept. 16 to 18 at the Red Jacket Inn, Bass River in South Yarmouth.

Dr. John M. Markey, 246 Turnpike St., and Dr. Richard Garian, 643 Turnpike St., both of North Andover, are serving on the convention committee.

Reserve Transfers To Be A "Management" Function

The board of selectmen decided 4-1 Monday night to be involved in transfers from the reserve fund "for information purposes" only.

The majority decided they'd like to be notified when Town Manager J. Maynard Austin asks the Finance Committee for a transfer, and again when Fincom takes its action.

The lone "nay" vote several times throughout the 3½-hour session, Selectman Richard J. Bowen argued that a reserve transfer actually represents an amendment to a budget and therefore should be handled by the selectmen as a matter of policy, and not by the administration.

If his colleagues didn't see it as a policy matter, he contended, "then we are not a policy-making body." He added, "anything else we consider is piddling by comparison."

Bowen noted that 40 transfers totalling $190,000 had been made in the past year, the largest single one for snow removal.

However, he said, the town counsel's $30,000 budget had been increased by another $27,000 in reserve fund transfers.

"I can't by any stretch look at any such addition as casual or as a managerial decision," he said.

Bowen further objected that if the board or an individual selectman had a strong feeling about a particular transfer, he would have to go to a FinCom meeting to express it.

"With all due respect," he said, "that's somewhat awkward."

He said Monday's action also raises the question of how the board monitors the budget.

"The fact of the matter is," he said, "that we don't. And we will be placing another obstacle in the way of monitoring it if we pass this motion."

Colleague Philip Salamone said he viewed the town manager as chief executive, and that he saw transfers as revisions, not amendments to a budget.

"It is impossible," he said, "to see a budget approved that doesn't need some revision, during the year," and added that he felt the board was ill-equipped to deal with revisions. The responsibility belongs with the manager and FinCom," he said.

"The time for us on the budget," he said, "is before Town Meeting, when the manager is making recommendation. If we feel a line is underfunded or overfunded on the basis of the previous year," he said, "we can correct it then."

Selectman Edward M. Harris noted the "honest difference of opinion," then agreed with Salamone it was the manager's function to request a transfer.

Chairman Susan Poore said the fact that the board receives the transfer report at all is a form of monitoring. "I would not preclude the thought that if we objected to an item we couldn't bring it up before this board," she concluded.

Migrating birds probably indicated land areas to early explorers. The flight of the golden plover between Bering Strait and South Pacific islands may have alerted the Tahitians to the existence of Hawaii. The Azores are named for hawks (acores) which the Portuguese probably followed west, Massachusetts Audubon tells us. The wheatear, a thrush that migrates between Europe and North America, may have been noticed by the Vikings.

Teacher Publishes Special Needs Book

Author Aram

Mary Aram, special needs teacher in Andover as well as author, genealogist, mother, gourmet cook, inventor and horticulturist, shows how to use her newly published math workbook.

By Linda S. Corbett

When Mary Aram starts talking about all her projects — as special needs teacher, author, inventor, working mother, hostess — she somehow makes it all sound easy. She has that sort of quiet, uncluttered manner that belies a very busy lady. She's the kind of person who, when you jokingly ask "What do you do in your spare time?" starts to tell you.

Mrs. Aram, who has long specialized in helping youngsters with particular learning disabilities, has just authored a special workbook for elementary youngsters who have trouble with math. It is being distributed nationally in time for school this fall.

At the same time, she's preparing to teach a course in "Math for Elementary Teachers" at Lesley College's Graduate School, from which she herself graduated a year ago.

And, she's taking on a new class of six or eight perceptually handicapped youngsters at Bancroft School.

A teacher in Andover since 1971, Mrs. Aram feels she is blessed with the ability to relate to children. When you relate to them, she claims, they will try harder. When they try harder, they feel better about themselves. "And this," she says, "is important for their mental health."

Mrs. Aram's teaching philosophy particularly developed during her years in inner-city schools in Rochester, N. Y., and Birmingham, Ala., where many of the youngsters were culturally deprived. If they weren't having success in a class, she made a special effort to find appropriate materials and develop worksheets that would make the subject meaningful.

Particularly when you teach a range of children, she says, you need a lot of materials — and this spring she found herself making three station wagon trips home when she moved out of her classroom at West Elementary.

At one point a few years ago, when she was teaching a K-1 class, her supervisor suggested she use lots of "manipulatives" to teach beginning work with numbers.

"I didn't know what she meant," Mrs. Aram says. So she set out to learn and now has developed a workbook that relies on objects the children can pick up and move around their papers — beads, dried beans, tiny blocks, buttons. Add some crayons, plastic cups, dominoes, pennies, paste and yarn and dice, and learning becomes more interesting.

Her book "Learning To Add & Subtract Numbers 1-10" she says, is different from other elementary math programs primarily in its use of manipulatives and the "multi-sensory" approach to math.

A youngster will place four beans, for instance, in the large, designated boxes on a work sheet. He counts them, arranges them, recites the number sentence, writes down the answer. He's used touch, sight, speech and hearing — all the different senses — to reinforce that particular math experience.

If he's working on his threes, she goes on, he can put three blocks on the squares, take a piece of yarn around two of them and pull them off the page.

If he has difficulty in one learning mode, such as seeing, he still has input on other channels. He may remember feeling three and taking two away, or saying, "Three minus two is one."

The new book, published by Educators Publishing Service, Inc., of Cambridge, contains 68 work sheet masters so the teacher can run off as many of each as needed.

Mrs. Aram also developed 143 lessons with detailed instructions for the work sheets, and suggests how the teachers can develop supplementary lessons and materials themselves.

The book is designed for Grades 1 to 3, and especially for children with special needs, though it can be used as supplementary material for other youngsters as well.

While math might seem to be Mrs. Aram's strong-suit — she's starting a follow-up book on Numbers 11 through 20 — this fall she'll be teaching the whole range of subjects to her special needs class. She has also written 17 linguistic plays for primary youngsters who are just learning to read and can benefit by use of the letter sounds.

Mrs. Aram likes to think writing runs in the family, her grandmother and grandfather both having published books. Her grandmother reared seven children in Upstate New York and when she needed some spending money, she'd whip up something on gardening or natural history or the Adirondacks and sell to various magazines.

This summer Mrs. Aram wrote a short story about special needs youngsters, which she is in the process of "polishing," and she has "vague ideas" for a story about an Iranian immigrant, based on the experiences of her husband Ali, an orthodontist whom she met in Rochester, N. Y., while attending the university.

Because of their international marriage, Mrs. Aram has travelled a great deal. She speaks Persian and finds their home a pleasant mixture of Persian rugs and Americana (the family genealogist, she's just traced her roots back to the Mayflower).

Persian cooking has become a specialty, and for the past 10 years or so, she has given an Iranian New Year's dinner (March 21) for a group of Persian friends. They tell her the menu, the smells and the setting are so authentic they feel they're back in their parents' homes in Iran.

Such a dinner might consist of smoked

The Language of Flowers

by Gerry Trull

If the opportunity presents itself, go down to the sea for sea shells and come up with some nifty planters for mini-bouquets. Or use old pill bottles, salt or pepper shakers, demetasse cups or vanilla bottles beside your salad plates or wine glasses. Think several small arrangements for your dinner party instead of the traditional center piece. A few sprigs from your potted begonias or African violets, some interesting leaves from your coleus or textured foliage plants make charming tiny bouquets. They do not take up any space and add a cheerful touch to any table. Or try one on your hors d'oeuvre tray in a large clam shell. There is no end to the effects you can dream up if you think small and use your houseplants and containers in a creative way.

And there's no end to the selection of houseplants and containers at TRULL'S MILL HILL FLOWER CENTER, 411 River Road, 851-6161. Our plants are grown in our own greenhouse and include hanging, floor and table plants in beautiful array. We also feature a full selection of fresh cut flowers; check our weekly $1.97 cash & carry special. Hours: 9-5:30 Mon-Sat.

fish (she usually uses cod) dipped in egg batter with saffron, a spinach-and-greens souffle with Iranian herbs, herbed rice with fennel and lima beans, a yogurt and cucumber salad, and a plate of parsley, scallions, mint leaves, radishes and feta cheese served with Syrian-type bread.

A large platter of fruit and salted pistachio nuts is a standard at a Persian dinner, and it would likely all be topped off with nun pangeray, window bread pastries similar to Swedish timbales, rice pudding with saffron and slivered almonds, and Persian tea.

On a more everyday scale, Mrs. Aram serves many "khoreshes, casserole-type dishes such as lamb with eggplant in tomato sauces and white rice, or chicken with ground walnuts and pomegranate juice. Her mother-in-law keeps her in Iranian herbs and spices.

Another hobby with Mrs. Aram is plants — she has more than 50 in the house — and she may parlay this pastime into a business. She had a patent search done this summer on an invention that involves plants and disease and insect control, but she won't divulge any details for the time being.

She is also a "birder," and while working for three college summers at the Museum of Science in Rochester, she led field trips to identify plants, birds, rocks and the like.

The Arams, who have lived in Andover since 1969, have two daughters; Lili, a senior at Andover High who attended a writing workshop with her mother in Waltham earlier this summer, and Sherene, who's in her second year at Phillips Academy.

Mrs. Aram, who has also taught many in-service courses here relating to special needs, credits the educational environment in Andover with being allowed to finish her book.

"It's not just one individual teacher, but the professional environment that makes it possible," she says.

She says she finds the teachers here generally supportive and willing to share, and sensitive to the needs of their pupils.

"They really give," says one who does herself.

Jubilee Year England

By Raymond B. DeRuisseau

Wales • Cymru

Wales is beautiful country.

Leaving Cardiff for Aberystwyth via Brecon, the fabled English country-side began to reveal itself in all its glory. With a backdrop of blue, blue sky we began to see the various greens that mark the lowlands and rolling hillsides. Everywhere the green was flecked with white. The white flecks are the sheep which keep the fields and hills beautifully manicured. Sheep! They exist in a ratio of four to one with humans in Wales, we were told.

The images of Wales created in years past by Hollywoodised depiction and such books as "How Green Was My Valley" (very likely all true at the time) vanished. The stone cottages and the tight little villages with odd sounding names are far from being prepossessing but all are neat and well tended. At regular intervals one sees the familiar "Bed and Breakfast" signs, an experience we regretfully had to forego.

The past induces the uninitiated to associate Wales with coal, soot and misery. The somber scenes of the mine shaft elevators with their huge spoked wheels raising the loads from below are well remembered and one begins to wonder what became of them. They are still there but not in the numbers that once were. We were told that at one time the coal mining industry employed over 350,000 Welshmen. Today the number is in the vicinity of 35,000.

Great strides have been made in erasing the scars of industry and the legacy of dereliction left in many parts of Wales by the industrial revolution. In the early 1960s plans were approved for a Government grant to reclaim 99 acres of scarred landscape. In October 1966 the tragedy of Aberfan, where a coal tip slid down the mountain side and engulfed a school and several houses killing 144 people, 116 of them children, spurred reclamation activity. The Government acted within a month of the disaster. After the expenditure of many millions of pounds, over 7,000 acres had been reclaimed by the mid 1970s. More has been accomplished today and we saw the work going on.

Tips are mountainous heaps of refuse and slag remaining after the coal has been extracted. Cranes and booms dropping this spoil in one location created these unsightly and dangerous tips. The plan was and is to remove the tips from the hillsides and deposit the material on the valley floors to provide flat land for new industries. This has been and is being done including the fertilization of the newly established fields. We saw many of them abloom with June flowers though green growth is a problem due to the poor quality of this new soil.

Our bus stopped on a hill overlooking Aberfan and we viewed where the slide took place. One would never know today that the hazardous problem ever existed. The new school is on the other side of town and very trim looking as are the numerous new houses. The sad reminder is a small hillside cemetery with its many, many white crosses.

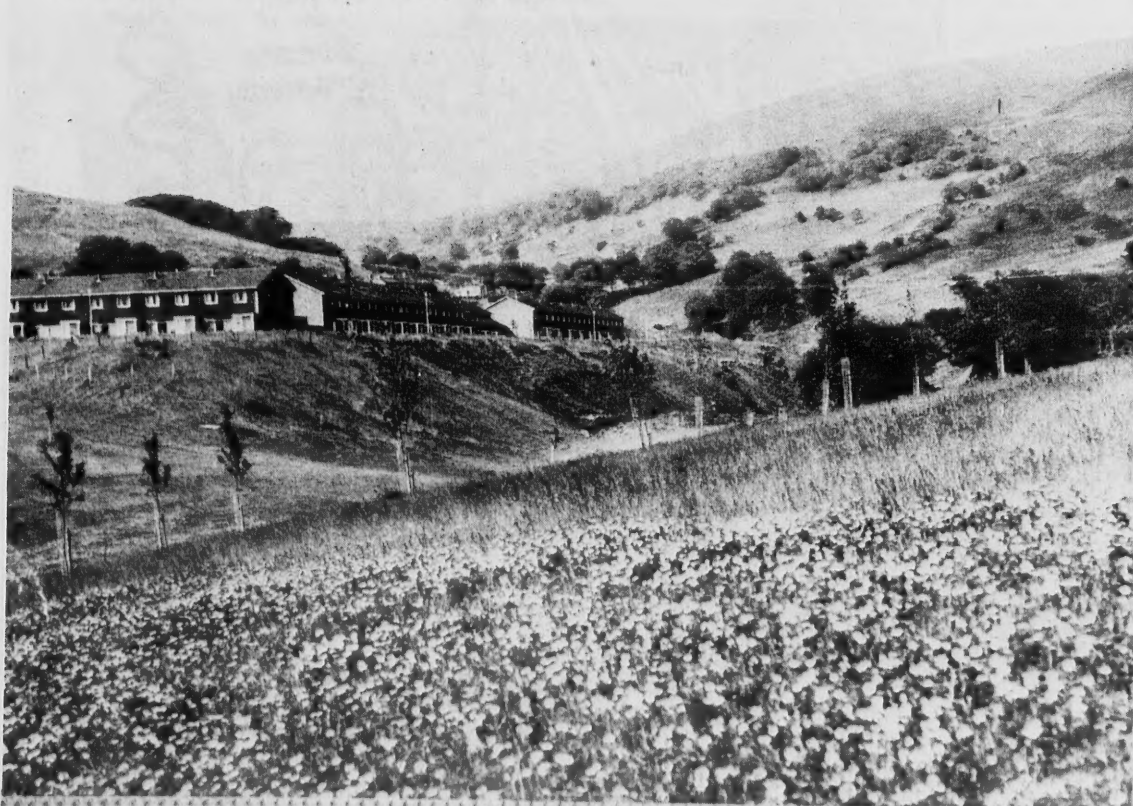

Refuse problems exist in areas other than South Wales. The country produces not only coal but is heavy in steel and slate quarrying. In Gwynedd, slate operations have left a large number of water-filled craters. A start has been made in reclaiming these areas and in Mid-Wales research

Airman Steven DeRoche

Airman Steven A. DeRoche, son of Mr. and Mrs. Armond J. DeRoche of 467 Lowell St., Andover, has been assigned to Lowry AFB, Colo., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland AFB, Tex., the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations. Completion of this training earned the individual credits towards an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Airman DeRoche will now receive specialized training in the munitions and weapons maintenance field.

The airman is a 1977 graduate of Andover High School.

is used to generate electricity for the plant. This electricity, also, is sold to surrounding communities. Co-generation of electricity by industry in the U.S. would save 725,000 barrels of oil a day, according to a study by Dow Chemical Company, Massachusetts Audubon says.

To Ask Builder To Restore Stream

Town Manager J. Maynard Austin was directed by selectmen Monday to take action against a builder who has allegedly violated provisions of the Wetlands Protection Act in two instances.

Austin, reporting on the results of last week's hearing by the Conservation Commission, asked the board for authority to take legal action to have a brook in the Farmland Circle area restored.

He said that Olympia Construction co., when it began developing Farmland Circle off Argilla Road, was denied a request to relocate a brook that flowed across the properties.

The builder did not follow through on an appeal but, Austin said, the stream has in fact been relocated, "probably after the houses were built and the road completed."

The selectmen voted 5-0 to allow Austin to proceed on the matter.

Olympia Construction was also involved in properties on Reservation Road where a "couple of foundations went in over a holiday weekend." Even though the builder had complied with the building permit and undersurface sewerage requirements, part of one foundation was allegedly put in less than the required 100 feet from a designated Wetlands stream without a request being filed with proper authorities.

A cease and desist order was issued on behalf of the Conservation Commission.

Austin recommended Monday that no legal action be taken against the builder in this case, but that he be asked to provide an easement over the property so storm water from Pilgrim Drive, which now empties onto other properties, could be routed across his lot via open ditch. It ultimately would flow down to the Baker's Meadow area.

The selectman again voted 5-0 and asked that the manager, while seeking the easement, also have the builder provide the engineering survey maps and legal work necessary to wrap up the matter.

goes on for the purification of land affected by toxic metal wastes. New housing, clear streams and appealing greens attest that great strides have been made already. The result is a pleasure to behold.

As we made our way into Brecon Beacons National Park we became more conscious of the strange seemingly unpronounceable names for which Wales is known almost everywhere. Ebbw Vale, Cwmbran and the double-L names: Llangollen, Llangurig, etc. Our guide told us that given the time-opportunity she could teach us to pronounce all the names with ease. We did learn that the double-Ls are sounded as "Ach", hence Llanberis comes out Achanberis. After a while it begins to roll out. One even learned to pronounce Penrhyndeudraeth (Pen-ren-dryth). We never did find out how to pronounce the double-Ds, though. Behind all this puzzlement to us is the fact that the Welsh are a Celtic people, and they pronounce it with a K. It is a country of two languages. Estimates are that a quarter of the people speak Welsh but in many parts of Wales some seven out of every ten people are said to speak the native tongue. Some weekly newspapers in Wales are printed entirely or partly in Welsh. National TV devotes 12 hours weekly to programs in the Celtic tongue. It was interesting to be told that the language is akin to that spoken by the Bretons in Northern France and that with some effort the two peoples can converse. The Scots are also Celts (pronounced with a C) but we were firmly told in Scotland that their language is English.

Travelling on, we came upon whole hillsides covered with rhododendrons in full bloom. A real bonus due to our June timing. Then we saw great areas covered with wild mustard and the bright yellows blending with the greens is very striking. It naturally became picture-taking time and our motorcoach driver stopped again and again so that his passengers could admire the scene. The Welsh love their flowers and the neat, modest dwellings are surrounded by a profusion of fox gloves, canterbury bells and roses.

Still on the subject of greenery, in Brecon Park we began to see evidences of reforestation in the form of large tracts of new pines and we noted these tracts throughout our visit in Britain. Ecology is an evident consideration in all activities we observed and were briefed on. The reforestation is orderly and seen from a distance looks like huge blankets of corduroy laid over the hills.

In Britain the National Parks, unlike our own, do not affect the ownership of property, which remains just as private as one's own back garden. Stone walls and hedgerows are the farmer's garden fence. Generally there are no legal rights of access to the country side anywhere but on registered footpaths and bridle ways. Brecon Beacon encompasses a 519 square mile area.

In 1976 Britain experienced a critical water shortage, much the same problem faced by Californians today. The drought was so serious that water was actually shut off in some cities during specified times. That shortage does not exist in Jubilee Year, not because the Government did something about it overnight. Plans had been formulated and put into practice long before the dry spell. But it rained!

We were guests of the Welsh Water Development Authority in Brecon which serves an area of 2.9 million people. This Authority, one of ten new such agencies for England and Wales, came into being in 1974. We were told that these agencies control and develop a multitude of operations from the construction of new dams to the provision of leisure facilities. The mean rainfall is 53" and all reservoirs we saw, and they were many, were filled to the brim. Over coffee we explored the snowfall question and were told that "Yes, it snows sometimes." Pollution controls are stringent and enforced. Sewage treatment works are funded by Divisions of which there are seven in Wales alone.

Aberystwyth was our next stop and we arrived at the seaside resort just before noon. Immediately we were taken to the National Library of Wales where we were received by Mr. David Jenkins, OEB, Librarian. The library, a magnificent building, is situated on Constitution Hill commanding a sweeping view of the countryside, the town below and the Irish Sea. It is surrounded by luxuriant rock gardens. A general reference library, it specializes in printed, manuscript and graphic material pertaining to Wales and other Celt countries.

At a noon buffet, Professor C. Kidson, Deputy Principal, University College of Wales in Aberystwyth was our host. We met with five of his educators, Mr. Jenkins and D. C. Wright, editor of the Cambrian News, a Welsh/English weekly newspaper. Mr. Wright was much interested in hearing about the TOWNSMAN and issues of our paper have been forwarded in exchange for the News. Our processes were of prime interest since offset printing is far from common in England.

One strange note was revealed as we strolled about town after lunch. In front of the University College stands a tall statue of a Prince of Wales. Welshmen have a curious habit of taking off the statue's head and burying it in the sand when things aren't to their liking in Wales, then returning it to its proper position when things level off. During our visit the statue was minus its head. Devolution?

Our next article will describe Portmeirion, a remarkable hotel community and our trip on the Festinoig Choo-Choo.

Fortiades - Lucy

Diane Marie Lucy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Lucy, 1 Haven Drive, Andover, became the bride July 30 of George Louis Fotiades of Naperville, Ill. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis G. Fotiades.

The Rev. Robert H. Grant of Post Falls, Idaho, the bride's uncle, officiated at the noon mass at St. Augustine's Church, Andover, which was decorated with yellow and white gladioli and purple statice. A reception followed at the Lanam Club.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk organza featuring a high, traditional neckline, empire waist, cap sleeves, and full chapel-length train. The entire bodice and hemline were appliqued with re-embroidered Alencon lace and highlighted with clusters of pearl beading. A mantilla of illusion appliqued with matching lace and beading completed the ensemble.

She carried a cascade of phalenopsis orchids, yellow roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Witman of Andover attended her sister as matron of honor, while bridesmaids included the groom's sister, Mrs. Maria Estes of Charleston, Ill.; Mrs. Debra Mayo of Andover; the bride's cousin, Brenda Jean Benedict of Fort Lee, N. J.; and Mrs. Joyce Nigrelli of Hampton Falls, N. H.

They wore sleeveless gowns of aqua-mint jersey with detachable capes of asymmetrical style in ivory and aqua-mint chiffon. They carried arm bouquets of yellow roses, purple statice and baby's breath.

Mrs. Lucy chose a gown of blue pleated jersey with a blue daisy pom on the matching choker, while the groom's mother wore a gown of aqua and beige Quiana, with a corsage of yellow and white roses.

Paul Estes of Charleston, Ill., served as the best man, and ushers included the bride's brothers, Robert F. Lucy Jr. and Richard H. Lucy, both of Andover; Marc Roche of Naperville, Ill.; and John Gregor of New Jersey.

The new Mrs. Fotiades received her B. A. from the university of Massachusetts of 1975, and her M. S. from the University of Illinois in 1976. She is a speech and language therapist. Her husband, a 1975 graduate of Amherst College, received his M.B.A. degree this year from Northwestern University. He is employed by Procter and Gamble Co., in Cincinnati where the couple is making their home following a wedding trip to Nantucket Island.

Energy consumption in Sweden is 10 megawatts (10 million watts) per $1000 of the Gross National Product. In the U. S. energy consumption is 18 megawatts per $1000 G.N.P., Massachusetts Audubon reports.

Former Resident Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Bradford, Jr., formerly of Andover and now of Somerset, Bermuda announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Nancy, to Guy Louis Joly, son of M. and Mme. Maurice Joly of Lyon, France.

The future bride graduated from Boston University and attended Hollins College, Roanoke, Va. and the Parsons School of Design, New York City. She is a member of the Junior League of Boston and of the Vincent Club of Boston.

M. Joly is a graduate of Institut Supérieur d'Electronique de Paris and Institut Européen D'Administration des Affaires at Fountainebleau.

A wedding is planned at Riverie, Rhone, France in September, after which the couple will reside in New York.

Schoolgirl Art On Exhibit

"Evidence of Accomplishment: Schoolgirl Art in Early 19th Century New England," will remain on view in the Old Sturbridge Village Visitor Center gallery through Sept. 5.

The display of needlework and watercolor pictures and paintings on velvet shows artwork performed by adolescent girls who attended female academies in the early 19th century. The exhibition was assembled by Jane C. Nylander, Curator of Textiles and Ceramics at Old Sturbridge Village, and represents 10 years of research into the field.

Fashionably educated schoolgirls in the early 19th century learned mastery of the pencil, the needle and the paintbrush. They also read the classics, some contemporary fiction, histories, religious work and geography. These studies were often combined at term's end in the production of art pieces that illustrated themes from the readings.

Mrs. Paul C. Meyer

Meyer - Naman

Honeymooning in Bermuda, are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Christian Meyer who were married Saturday at St. Nicholas Greek Orthodox Church in Portsmouth N.H.

The bride is the former Deborah Jean Naman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Naman, formerly of 13 Marwood Dr., Andover, and now of Rye Beach, N.H. Her husband is Paul Christian Meyer, son of Dr. and Mrs. Duane Meyer of Springfield, Mo.

The Rev. Michael Buben of St. George's Syrian Orthodox Church in Lawrence officiated at the 11 o'clock service, before an altar decorated with pedestal arrangements of cream gladioli, snowflake chrysanthemums, pom poms, carnations and baby's breath. Edward O'Connor provided solo music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her mother's gown of antique ivory satin and nylon tulle fashioned with snug bodice and off-shoulder neckline draped with pleated nylon berth. The redingote scalloped skirt, appliqued with imported chantilly lace encrusted with pearls and ceylon beads, cascaded into acathedral train. A headdress of softly crushed nylon tulle trimmed with chantilly lace, pearls and ceylon beads held her full-length veil of illusion. She carried a cascade crescent bouquet of cream gladioli blossoms and stephanotis accented with ivory picott-ribbon.

The bride's cousin Barbara Erban of North Andover attended as her maid of honor, and bridesmaids were the groom's sisters, Andrea Meyer of Springfield, Mo.; Margaret Sexton of Boston and Mrs. Clair Carlson of Randolph. They wore gowns of aquamint Quiana with modified Queen Anne neckline, cap sleeves, belted waist and smooth, flowing skirt. They wore hairpieces of cream and aquamint gladioli blossoms, miniature carnations and snowflake poms with ivory picott-ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Naman chose a gown of shell pink silk chiffon with a shell pink beaded top for her daughter's wedding, while the groom's mother wore a formal gown of frosted turquoise crepe.

Mark Meyer of Springfield, Mo., served his brother as best man, and ushers included the bride's brother, Alfred D. Naman of Rye Beach, N.H., the groom's brother, James Meyer of Springfield, Mo., James Hawk of Jefferson, Iowa and John Norris of Hinsdale, Ill.

A reception followed the ceremony at The Wentworth By The Sea in New Castle, N.H.

The new Mrs. Meyer, a graduate of Abbot Academy, received a B.A. degree in child development from Connecticut College in New London, and a master's degree in special education from the University of Arizona in Tucson. She is a learning disabilities specialist in Newmarket, N.H.

Her husband, who received his B.A. degree in economics and business administration from Coe College in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, is studying toward his juris doctor and M.B.A. degrees at Harvard University, and will graduate in June, 1978.

The couple will be living in Ipswich.

Food production is being taken away from self-provisioning farmers and tied into the world marketing system so that local food resources are not feeding local people, Massachusetts Audubon tells us.

Would Relieve Police Of School-Related Duties

Editor's Note: This is the third in a series based on a critical evaluation of the Andover Police Department by a consulting firm hired after a vote of Town Meeting. Previous articles have dealt with patrol officer and investigative activities in an Operations Division. Here begins a report on recommendations for a Service Division.

Andover's Police Department, which has long been involved in school bus and truancy problems, will be largely relieved of those duties if an independent consulting firm gets its way.

Public Administration Service of Washington, D. C., has reported that the police department shouldn't have to be as involved as it is in the school bus transportation program, and recommends that the school's system's transportation assistant, not the police department, make all decisions on transportation needs — including the resolution of bus stop and other parent complaints.

PAS feels the police role in these matters should be "indirect and consultative" rather than direct.

The consultants had earlier recommended that the school safety officer position be discontinued as such, and the $1,000 stipend given him by the schools be discontinued as a "conflict of interest."

PAS further contends that Andover schools rely too heavily on the police to resolve problems "that can best be characterized as school behavioral problems."

"Of course, the police and the schools should work together in matters of mutual interest and concern," they say, adding "It is equally clear, however, that the schools should take a greater responsibility for their own problems, as in the case of truancy."

They propose that the police chief meet with school officials on a regular basis to discuss such issues and develop "a more appropriate police-school relationship."

"The police should be available as a resource to the schools," PAS says, "yet on the other hand, they should not become involved in those areas where the schools have tested and principal responsibilities and interests."

To accomplish all this, PAS suggests a new Community Services Department within the proposed Services Division. It would consist of two principal activities, one devoted to community service, the other youth services — both under one officer.

He would take on crime prevention duties and provide a variety of other community services such as school liaison. He would also develop programs and be responsible for scheduling public tours and speakers at public events and community activities.

The youth services aspect would include duties now provided by the safety officer in terms of the schools, as well as working with the community's youth. A particular effort would be made to stress position police-youth relationships.

In an earlier police-school discussion, PAS had recommended that additional civilian crossing guards be hired to relieve uniformed officers of that responsibility. They said that four of the five officers on duty between 7 and 9 a.m. are tied up for crossing duty, "severely limiting the department's capability to respond to other needs."

Personnel, Training

A second brand new function recommended by the consulting firm is a personnel and training office.

An untrained employee, especially in the police service, the report says, "is a potentially dangerous one," and they suggest the department develop a five-year training program under a new training officer.

They suggest three types of training — recruit training, in-service and specialized.

While recruit training is provided according to a state law, that requires a 480-hour basic course, PAS recommends that after the academy, a recruit be assigned to work with a sergeant for a three to six-month on-the-job training period. When the sergeant feels the recruit has achieved a satisfactory level of performance, he would be allowed to operate independently.

PAS also recommends at least 40 hours of in-service training per year for each sworn officer, and the institution of training aides and a library with the most current literature and periodicals.

Any specialized training, they say, could be in addition to the 40 hours of in-service, and would be offered to officers who hold special duty assignments.

Present Services

The Andover Police Department of course already has several support functions which PAS would group under the new Services Division, including communications and record-keeping, property and evidence control, vehicle maintenance and the like.

Keep Civilian Dispatchers Communications

The Police Department uses civilian dispatchers for communications on almost all shifts — they are now responsible for answering incoming telephone calls, both emergency and administrative, recording preliminary information on service calls and crimes, dispatching units to locations where they're needed, assisting members of the public who come into the station, and maintaining the shift radio log. In addition, they operate a teletype unit down the hallway and monitor a silent intrusion alarm board.

The department now has three general incoming lines, plus private lines to the chief and the detective division.

Personnel assigned to communications and dispatching duties are under the command of the senior patrol supervisor on duty and have never had any formal training.

PAS recommends four dispatchers — one for relief, — who would be under the general supervision of the division commander. They would continue to use civilians, who but give them extensive training in proper radio procedures. In addition, PAS would have them instructed in criminal law, municipal ordinances, and police patrol and investigative procedures and if possible, have some first-hand exposure to police problems in the field, and be thoroughly familiar with the geographic characteristics of the town.

Finally, PAS says communications practices should be strengthened considerably, and that dispatchers shouldn't expect other personnel to answer the telephone while they are other lines conversing with callers about nonemergency matters.

In conclusion, they say the dispatcher workload in Andover "is not such that procedures cannot be measurably improved."

Evidence And Property

PAS found no uniform system for control over either property or evidence — some both are located in some other offices, for example. Further complications arise, PAS says, by weak practices for temporary evidence storage. Evidence which is confiscated over the weekend or at night, is frequently left unsecured in the lieutenant's office, which other lieutenants also share, until his next regular work day.

PAS, by way of strengthening evidence control, suggests the Services Division commander assume responsibility for it. They suggest officers who discover items complete an Evidence Record and attach it to the original offense and/or arrest report.

Evidence should be turned over to a property officer, and if he wasn't on duty, placed in temporary storage lockers, with the key placed in a slot where it could be retrieved only by the property officer.

The permanent evidence storage, in the property rooms, would be secure from unauthorized persons — that is, people other than the property officer and the chief. When evidence is needed for prosecution or laboratory analysis, the investigator or officer assigned to the case would prepare a release form.

PAS also suggests the division commander be responsible for developing a control program for department equipment, including an inventory log to identifying each piece and an inventory of property every six months to assess general condition and maintenance requirements.

Vehicle Maintenance

Vehicle maintenance is provided by a full-time mechanic who also makes and installs the town's street signs, replaces bulbs in street lights and traffic signals, and repairs downtown parking meters.

PAS found the vehicles themselves to be well cared, action which in turn has resulted in a minimum of vehicle "downtime."

They also found records on vehicle fuel consumption, general maintenance and required repairs to be "quite thorough."

The only change PAS would recommend in this activity is the reassignment of sign shop, street and traffic light maintenance activities to the Public Works Department, feeling they fall more property in that area.

The mechanic's case load would increase with the acquisition of additional vehicles — a requirement of the patrol recommendation for one-man cruisers is followed through. If he weren't busy, however, he could still be made available to the DPW on a time-permitting, reimburseable basis.

Next installment: Record-keeping, equipment facilities.

AHS Student Spends Summer At Harvard

Susan Cohen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Cohen of 6 Korinthian Way, is one of a limited number of exceptionally qualified secondary school seniors-to-be now studying at Harvard Summer School in Cambridge.

Susan, who is taking The Career Exploration Workshop this summer, will be a senior at Andover High School next month.

Of her Harvard experience, for which she will receive regular academic credit, Susan says, "Although I am only taking one course at Harvard, it has been very satisfying as far as the quality of the professors and the manner in which the course is conducted." She adds, "The trips we have made and speakers we have heard have given me a chance to meet people from these professions and learn about them first hand, and in depth."

The Harvard Summer School, now in its 102nd session, has been educating secondary school students for 20 years. The earliest group of four students from the Cambridge area studied at Harvard in the summer of 1957. The expanded, national program — in the form that it is now known — began in 1966 with an enrollment of 77 and has grown to a group of 300 selected students attending Harvard this summer.

Students are housed together with other members of their program in Harvard Yard dormitories, ones normally occupied by freshmen but set aside for secondary school students during the 8-week summer session. Carefully chosen and trained proctors, frequently Harvard graduate students, live in the same dormitories and are available for guidance and support.

While some secondary school participants in the Harvard Summer School program later matriculate at Harvard and Radcliffe Colleges, most students find the educational experience useful as an end in itself in preparing themselves for admission to the college of their choice. There is no implication that participation in the Harvard Summer School program in any way guarantees admission to Harvard or Radcliffe.

All secondary school students enjoy access to the normal Harvard curriculum and receive the same instruction as other students, but they also receive special guidance in choosing their courses. Their performance is usually academically superior to the average of other Summer School students.

Outside of class, students take advantage of the unique cultural climate of Harvard in the summer — free concert and lecture series, art exhibits, dance recitals, theater — and the many resources of the historic Boston-Cambridge area.

Party Honors Author Of Book About Woman

The Lowell Museum will host an autograph party tomorrow for members and guests to meet Judith Nies, author of "Seven Women, Portraits from the American Radical Tradition."

The event which coincides with the 57th anniversary of woman's suffrage will take place in the exhibit area of the Lowell Museum, 560 Suffolk St., Lowell, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Ms. Nies, who as assistant secretary for the Massachusetts' Department of Environmental Affairs, was a designate to the Federal Commission which will make Lowell the first urban cultural park in the nation, had family members who came to Lowell from Canada to work in the Lowell mills.

The book, published by Viking Press in May, traces the lives of seven women who have been a vital source for change in American life. The seven profiled are Sarah Moore Grimke, Harriet Tubman, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Mother Jones, Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Anna Louise Strong, Dorothy Day.

Sponsors of the event include Congressman and Mrs. Paul Tsongas, Dr. and Mrs. Patrick Mugar, Michelle Cunha, Patricia Sullivan, Lewis T. Karabatsos, Dr. and Mrs. William Wolf, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Taupier, Gail Dunfey, Lydia Howard, Karen Carpenter, and Mary Sampas. Proceeds from the sale of the book will benefit the Museum.

Three hundred pounds of wet kelp, a seaweed, can produce three pounds of methane gas. Methanogenic bacteria are put into vats with kelp. As bacteria break the kelp down they produce methane as a waste product, Massachusetts Audubon points out. This process occurs naturally in swamps where decaying matter is converted into swamp gas which is methane.

TOWNSMAN On Carson Show

The Andover TOWNSMAN made it to the Tonight Show last Thursday, with the help of budding comedian Jay Leno.

Leno, who has appeared on "Tonight" on several occasions, was discussing how the folks back home react to his new fame. He said he sent his mother several 8 by 10 photographs of him for the TOWNSMAN but she wouldn't have them in the paper because his hair was too long.

What his mother, Mrs. Angelo Leno, 32 Clark Road, preferred, he said, was an old 1968 high school photo, and he elicited a laugh from the studio audience when he produced a high school photo, crew cut and all.

In the March 10 issue this year, the TOWNSMAN did use one of the publicity shots of Leno today, and also one from the Andover High yearbook which had named Jay and Lynn Deyermund "funniest" at the school that year.

Leno has been on a nightclub circuit, and has also appeared on the Merv Griffin and Mike Douglas shows.

Abbot Property

architecturally. Both Abbot and McKean Halls, could be reused, he said. Only Draper Hall is considered too far gone to be adequately or economically restored for reuse.

One development possibility, Erickson said, would be a combination of apartments and residential lots, though he said the planning board "isn't too keen" about individual house lots. He said they feel that's not the most desirable use because it takes up most of the land with dwellings and doesn't leave much open space.

He said a total of 45 houses could be built on the 28 acres.

The planning board would rather see some of the presented buildings converted, and one or two apartment complexes in a relatively small area to maintain open space.

The guidelines passed on to the town also recommend that buildings not cover more than 15 percent of the land, or that buildings, parking and roads not cover more than 20 percent of the area.

If the land is developed into townhouses, he said, there would not be more than 400 to 500 residents, or more than 200 dwelling units.

Erickson said that town purchase of some of the land would be one way to insure openness, and answered "yes" to a question from Selectman Richard J. Bowen if such land would be considered for "passive" use. Erickson said also the space would be open to residents as opposed to the IRS where the open space is walled in.

The guidelines further suggest that having taxable property is better for the town than tax exempt, that reuse of some of the buildings is better for the town than their total replacement, and that a proposal which uses the whole site as an integral unit is better than one which divides it.

Erickson added that there can be too much of a good thing, such as an "all elderly housing" and noted that the number of egress points should be minimized so as not severely affect the existing streets.

Any use that would conform to all of the above, Erickson said, would probably be acceptable to the Planning Board.

Selectman Chairman Susan Poore noted that if Draper Hall were razed, it could be replaced by a new building that would be visually and spatially compatible, and Selectman Al Cole agreed that Draper "is the key" to the visual impact.

Guides Go Metric

The Massachusetts Department of Commerce and Development has gone metric with the publication by the Division of Tourism of a new tour guide and a directory of golf courses which give measurements in kilometers and meters.

The directory of the state's 234 golf courses shows the length of each course in yards and meters.

The tour guide contains 12 self-drive circle tours covering all areas of the Commonwealth from the Berkshires to the islands of Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket. Each leg of the tours is shown in miles and kilometers.

"Government agencies, business and industry can ease the transition into the metric system with equivalent comparisons of U. S. standards on goods, tools, machinery, documents, maps and mileage markers."

Selectman Richard J. Bowen said the key is keeping as much open space as possible for a high density use. We must deal with the entire site, he said, we can't just leave one-third of it hanging, if we're concerned about it maybe we should purchase it.

History has many examples of civilizations that failed to live in harmony with their ecosystems. Plato wrote in "Critias": What now remains compared with what then existed is like the skeleton of a sickman, all the fat and soft earth having wasted away, and only the bare framework of the land being left, Massachusetts Audubon tells us.

A Matter Of Communications

Who was it, in his wisdom, who said communication is a two-way street?

We find that particularly true in the community newspaper business where a limited staff simply can't know what's going on in every cranny in town.

And so we respectfully ask for the community's help in being our eyes and ears.

Case in point. Last spring we received a rather heated letter from a band parent who claimed it was nice of us to run a couple of pictures of the Band-Chorus Marathon AFTER the fact, but why didn't we print something about it ahead of time so residents could have attended, enjoyed and contributed.

You always cover sports events and bad news, she went on, not music and art.

The simple fact is that we didn't know. A teenage visitor luckily dropped word that a friend was involved in the concert, but not before the paper had gone to press for the week. Not one of the Band Parents promoting the event, no student, no school official, had told us in time to inform the community.

On the other hand, most sports coverage is turned in by the people who are involved in working with the youngsters themselves. For them it's a labor of love, with occasional small payment in the form of a byline.

We need the help of town officials too, and with school but a week away, we'd remind both parties that the joint school committee-administration direction letter sent out every year in the wake of elections, sets communications as a "priority."

Communications between members of the committee, with the administration, within the system, with the community.

The community — that's where we come in, with the simple hope that backup information can be provided and phone calls returned promptly so we can pass on a story to the community before another week is up.

We will hope not to have a rerun of last spring's incident where repeated calls to a central office official regarding a legal bill — for services NOT rendered — were never returned. The story never appeared, despite the committee chairman's strong feeling it should be communicated to the public.

On the brighter side, we feel congratulations are due the committee members who, at least to outward appearances, have been communicating openly. The cynical, accusatory attitude of other years seems to have largely disappeared, and some worthwhile educational exchanges have actually taken place at recent meetings — witness the discussions about starting age for school youngsters.

It seems appropriate to wish that attitude will continue through the coming school year so that educational issues, not politics and personalities, can prevail.

We could also hope for better town-school relations, though the recent school bus contract issue indicates that things haven't improved much. As in inter-school conflicts, the ones who have the most to lose are the children. As the buck got passed from the town manager's office to the new town purchasing agent, back to the school's business manager and the superintendent and around again, the bus contracts almost went unfilled until it was too late.

The Sept. 6 report to the school committee on relations between the town and the schools, requested last week by Committeeman Casimir Kolaski, could be well worth the price of admission.

A Bouquet For Joan

For a minute there last spring the Recreation/Community Schools Department was reminiscent of the nursery tale, "Ten Little Indians."

One day the department was all there. The next, Gary Ralph resigned as director and then program director Mark Klempa followed suit. The two ranking men were, in a flash, gone and then there was Joan.

One day a program director herself, the next, acting director, Joan Pearson has carried on admirably and modestly with, she says, help from "a lot of parttime people."

In addition to overseeing a bigger-than-ever summer program that had more than 1000 kids on the playgrounds, 900 in both enrichment and special interest sessions (double last year's enrollment) and 500 in swimming lessons, to say nothing of up to 450 Poms

Pond every day for fun and more at R/CS-sponsored concerts and movies, Joan has been developing the voluminous evening fall program. The catalogs are now being proofed now and will be mailed out after Labor Day.

At the same time, she's interviewing for a replacement for Klempa and responding to the needs of the R/CS committee, which is wrestling with the question of the department's future structure. Only when that issue is settled, not before late September, will the search begin for a new director.

And so Joan carries on, seemingly with the greatest of ease, having learned "fast" to delegate, and providing well-supervised, healthful activities, particularly for the young people of Andover.

She has earned our added respect and thanks.

After intermission, his guitar selections are by composers Sor, "Three Minuets," Tarrega, "Prelude" (Marieta and Recuerdo de la Alhambra); Villa Lobos, "Three Preludes."

Tickets for the Robert Sullivan Concert are $5.00.

For reservations and information call the Hammond Museum, Gloucester.

Drug Smugglers Far Better Equipped Than Drug Agents

By Jack Anderson and Joe Spear

WASHINGTON — The United States is losing the war against drugs.

The smugglers have formed secret combinations, which are operating at all levels of business and government. They are using their illegal profits to purchase banks, insurance companies and other legitimate businesses. They are also corrupting government officials.

Our sources in Washington identified Miami as the nation's drug-smuggling center. So we flew to Miami to find out what has gone wrong with drug enforcement. The field agents there told us they are intercepting probably less than 10 per cent of the illegal drugs flowing into the United States.

The drug smugglers have more men, faster boats and better planes than the government is using against them. The Drug Enforcement Agency has only 2,000 agents to cope with the multi-billion-dollar drug operation.

They are assisted by the Customs Service, which has only 1,359 officers to patrol the lengthy U. S. borders. The Coast Guard patrols the shoreline, with all its coves and inlets. But it has only 99 ships, for example, to watch the entire Atlantic coast. None of these vessels are fast enough to catch the smugglers' speedboats.

Federal agents have evidence that organized drug smuggling into this country is directed largely by three aging godfathers — Santos Trafficante in Florida, Carlos Marcello in New Orleans and Joe Bonanno in Tucson.

Bonanno oversees the smuggling across the Mexican border, Marcello along the Gulf coast and Trafficante through Florida and up the Atlantic Coast.

Bonanno trades mainly in brown heroin from Mexico. In Florida, Trafficante deals heavily in cocaine, most of it from Colombia. He has recruited his organization largely from the Cuban underworld.

Financial Finagling? Budget Director Burt Lance isn't the only presidential appointee under investigation for alleged financial finagling. The Senate Interior Committee is holding up the appointment of Robert Mendelsohn until his campaign finances are straightened out.

Mendelsohn is a San Francisco politician who ran up some huge campaign bills. Last spring, he raised money to pay off these debts. In the meantime, President Carter appointed him to a top post in the Interior Department.

A preliminary investigation found him innocent of personal wrongdoing. But there was evidence of serious violations by his campaign committee. It allegedly was involved in an illegal money-laundering scheme.

Now investigators are searching quietly for a memo from a California development corporation. This missing memo could implicate Mendelsohn or perhaps clear him. The Senate committee won't approve his appointment until it finds out.

But this hasn't kept Mendelsohn from drawing money from the taxpayers while he waits. He has quietly started to work at the Interior Department — as a consultant.

White House Pipeline: Richard Nixon, as the world now knows, installed a secret recording system inside the White House. He was later haunted by the tapes of his own incriminating conversation.

Now President Carter is experimenting with a computer system, which will record and catalog all his public remarks. It is supposed to preserve for posterity every word Carter speaks on the record — his speeches, press conferences and other public statements.

Our sources assure us the computer will be carefully programmed not pick up private conversations. The president wants no more secret White House tapes.

— Biking enthusiasts complained to the White House last April over President Carter's failure to mention bicycles in his energy address. No other form of transportation, they argued, could save more energy.

At first, White House aides chuckled. But he Transportation Department has changed their attitude. According to a preliminary study, bicycles could be used for up to 10 per cent of the trips made by shoppers and commuters in urban areas.

Duck Tale: Four years ago, a Maryland hunter named Jack Cooper happened upon a Canvasback duck caught in a trap. Unknown to him, the trap had been set by Fish and Wildlife agents. Canvasback ducks are an endangered species, and the agents wanted to trap a few for study.

Cooper could see the duck was mortally wounded. His hobby happens to be carving decoys out of wood. So he took the dying duck home, got it stuffed and used it as a model. Apparently, the taxidermist tipped off the government.

But the agents waited four years before investigating the duck's disappearance from the federal trap. They drove 300 miles to inspect Cooper's wildlife collection permit, then drove 300 miles back to their offices. A few days later, they repeated the trip. This time, they confiscated the stuffed bird.

The agents solemnly assured us, however, that they won't prosecute Cooper for absconding with their endangered duck.

Unfinished Business

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN:

In the Aug. 18 editorial, the TOWNSMAN, suggested that the surveys conducted on the CBD and on growth policy were dust collectors, and that little progress has been made concerning the recommendations which were formulated from these surveys. I wish to point out that the value of such surveys is often found, not in instant results, but in the fact that they serve as guides in the continuous process of planning and decision making on matters which affect both the CBD and the orderly growth of Andover. These surveys provided the town boards with the opinions of a substantial number of people, many of whom would have been otherwise silent on these issues. I have heard these surveys referred to numerous times regarding decisions made at the meetings of town officials and boards. In particular, the efforts of the Selectmen and the Industrial-Development Commission to keep the Post Office in the center of town were enhanced by the knowledge that the citizens of Andover overwhelmingly support a strong CBD. Furthermore, the fact that Andover included "attracting clean industry" as a top priority on the growth policy survey has resulted in a totally renewed effort by the IDC to accomplish this. Still another example is the CBD Committee, chaired by Peggy Keck, which is taking concrete action to alleviate the parking problem in the center of town.

True, progress is painfully slow. However, the fact that the people of Andover took the time to fill out and return these surveys is making a difference.

Volunteers Needed For Town Boards

Town Manager J. Maynard Austin this week issued an "SOS" for residents interested in serving on town boards and committees.

Austin said that his staff has developed an "Andover Talent Bank" form which will go out to residents with their tax bills in September or with the Finance Committee's report prior to Special Town Meeting. They are to be filled out by civic-minded volunteers and returned to be filed until a need arises.

Meanwhile, however, there are immediate openings on the Conservation Commission, Planning Board, Board of Health and Recreation/Community Schools committee, that need to be filled before then.

Persons interested are asked to contact the town manager's office for an appointment right away.

The "Talent Bank" form itself has spaces for a volunteer's name, address, occupation, education, fields of special training or experience such as architecture, construction, education, engineering, financial administration, government contracts, health care, human services, land use planning, management, public relations, transportation special skills, hobbies and interests.

It also asks for government or community volunteer experience, and lists town committees and boards that sooner or later will need new members.

The form is one result of last spring's selectman campaign during which the League of Women voters asked the candidates for ideas of how to encourage citizen involvement.

Meanwhile, the selectmen met again Tuesday night with Mrs. Margot Lindsay of the Institute for Governmental Services based at UMass-Amherst. Mrs. Lindsay has proposed a project to clarify existing roles of various town boards.

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN:

Your editorial of Aug., suggests that desks and files be checked for unfinished old business prior to the onslaught of new business. While I agree with this suggestion, the inclusion of the Climate for Learning Committee among unfinished business is unjustified and incorrect. A check of your own files would have revealed that the May 24, 1973 edition of the TOWNSMAN reported the presentation of the Climate for Learning Committee report at the School Committee meeting on May 15, 1973.

Having served on that Committee, I can add that this report was only a final summation of a report that had already been submitted to the School Committee in the form of the results of a survey. The summary report analyzed the survey results and emphasized the following points:

1( The town wants the schools to offer both a "traditional" and an "open" approach to education.

2( The town wants the schools to adopt a more clear and direct approach to discipline, with parental involvement.

3( The town feels that its most serious problems are at the secondary level, not the elementary.

4( The divisiveness and acrimony about educational issues have been due in large part to misunderstanding and confusion about what is going on in the schools. The Committee feels that the key to correct this situation is to improve and make more accurate the communication of school matters to the town.

Besides the fact that the results of the survey have been used in School Committee campaigns and in School Committee deliberations, the recommendations of the Climate for Learning Committee have also been reflected in school policies and actions over the last four years.

Incidentally, the final recommendation of the Committee was that its report should be made public, either through publication in the TOWNSMAN or direct distribution to homes. Perhaps the fact that this recommendation was never carried out is one reason for the confusion as to the outcome of this Committee's work.

Donald J. Mulvey

Ed: Apologies to the hard-working members of the Climate Of Learning Committee — we meant instead the more recent citizens committee to study the schools (did it ever have a name?) launched in 1964 after the dismissal of former Asst. Supt. Edward Regan and the other controversial actions by the "new" school committee at the time.

Dog Leashes

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN:

On Monday our pet rabbits' cages were broken into by a dog. A neighborhood boy said he saw a dog carrying one of our gray and white Dutch rabbits in his mouth. Later that day a friend said they found a headless gray and white rabbit in their front yard.

We really loved our pets. We took very good care of them and spent a lot of time in doing so. One was 6 and one was 1½ years old.

We hope that other children do not lose their pets the same way we did. We hope that people with dogs will keep them tied up or leashed.

North Andover Sweeps Playoffs

By Rick Harrison

The Andover Babe Ruth baseball team ended an otherwise successful season on a somewhat sour note last week, losing the best-of-5 G-L League championship playoff series to North Andover in three straight games.

NA, which also captured the regular season title, swept the finals with 4-1, 6-0 and 3-1 victories at Mark Devlin Field in Lawrence.

Andover, runner-up during the regular campaign as well, had eliminated South Lawrence West in a best-of-3 semifinal showdown with 1-0 and 4-1 victories. NA earned its berth with a 5-3, 7-2 sweep of Tower Hill in the semis.

The three losses, marking only the second time Andover had dropped as many as two straight games this summer, left the locals with a 20-11-1 overall record including 17-10-1 in the Greater-Lawrence League.

North Andover, meanwhile, stretched its victory streak through 24 straight games and completed the 1977 season with a sensational 26-1 overall ledger. Seven of Andover's 11 defeats were to North Andover.

Both Andover and NA received outstanding pitching throughout the championship series, but it was lapses in defense that cost Andover all three games.

Andover received complete game mound efforts from Bob Patterson, Pete Feeney and Steve Rathbun, who combined to hold NA to just 15 hits and four earned runs in the three games.

However, the locals also committed 18 errors that led to nine tainted runs and kept it the Avis (No. 2) team in the league for 1977.

North Andover hurlers Frank Gelinis, Dave Bouchard, Rick Roche and Dave Walsh limited Andover to only nine hits, and their defensive support was considerably better as the champs committed just four errors.

North Andover, 4-1

NA, with righthander Frank Gelinis on the mound opposing Andover's Bob Patterson in the opener, took a quick 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning.

Leadoff batter Dave Walsh walked, stole second, took third on Rick Roche's infield single, and scored when Howie Coon lofted a sacrifice fly to leftfielder Steve Rathbun.

The score remained 1-0 through five innings, as Patterson and Gelinis matched serves and neither club mounted a serious threat.

Andover finally pulled even 1-1 in the sixth. Lary Larrabee led with an infield single, stole second, and scored easily when Bill Stahley clouted a long two-out double to the base of the left-centerfield fence approximately 320 feet from home plate.

Gelinis walked the next batter, but averted further trouble with a subsequent strikeout.

NA rebounded with three unearned runs off tough-luck loser Patterson in the bottom of the sixth, taking advantage of four Andover errors.

The lone hits of the stanza were a clean RBI single by Greg Serio, and an infield dribbler by Bob Walmsley.

Andover, trailing 4-1, started a rally in the seventh when Wayne Merola walked and Steve Rathbun followed with a single.

Dave Bouchard was summoned in relief, and he pitched out by fanning the next batter and watching as Larrabee lined into a doubleplay.

NA third baseman Mark Androski, who played great defensive ball in each of the three games, made three outstanding plays in the opener.

He raced a long way for a back-to-the-plate grab of a foul pop by Bob Heidt in the first inning, then snagged vicious liners by Pete Gravalles and Brian Kelly in the fifth and sixth stanzas respectively.

Brian Kelly

... raps RBI single in finale

Andover shortstop Pete Feeney was one of the few bright spots on defense in game one, handling five chances flawlessly.

Gelinis finished with a four-hitter, walking four and whiffing eight including five straight at one juncture.

Patterson allowed only five singles, two of the infield variety, and one earned run. He issued four walks and struck out one, throwing 93 pitches along the way.

Bill Stahley paced the Andover attack with a perfect 2-for-2 night, while Greg Serio did likewise for NA.

North Andover, 6-0

Righthander Rick Roche, who had tossed three 1-hitters during the course of the regular season, gave NA a commanding 2-0 series' edge by firing a no-hit shutout against Andover in the 6-0 triumph.

It marked the first no-hitter thrown at the locals in seven years, since lefty Rick Redman (also of North Andover) turned the trick in an eight-inning 0-0 tie.

Andover only hit five balls out of the infield and had nothing close to a basehit. Roche retired the last 10 batters he faced, after Andover put single runners aboard in each of the first four frames.

Lary Larrabee, Bob Patterson and Bob Heidt were all safe on errors, while Pete Gravalles walked on four pitches to start the third inning.

Three Andover runners got as far as second, Larrabee twice stealing that base, but no one advanced further.

Pete Feeney was the Andover chucker victimized both by the no-hit gem and eight miscues behind him.

Feeney, like Patterson, surrendered only five singles and two of them were infield hits. He whiffed three and walked six.

NA notched the only run necessary in the second without benefit of a hit, taking advantage of two walks and a pair of Andover errors.

Feeney did work out of a bases-loaded jam here, as two errors and a free pass filled the sacks with no outs. Dave Bouchard bounced a fielder's choice grounder to shortstop, and Greg Serio scored simply by beating the throw home.

Rick Camire then grounded into a doubleplay from Feeney to catcher Brian Kelly to first baseman Bob Heidt, Andover's 17th twin-killing of the year, and Roche bounced out to Wayne Merola at second to end the stanza.

From there it was all downhill for Andover, however, as three infield errors and a walk made it 2-0 in the third, and two more miscues in the fourth enabled NA to up the score to 3-0.

The final three markers came in the sixth as Bouchard was safe on an error, Dave Walsh legged out an infield hit, Roche followed with another infield single, and Howie Coon lashed a two-run single.

Walsh finished 2-for-2 and was on base four straight times for North Andover. Serio and Bouchard both scored a pair of runs.

Amidst all the defensive confusion on the Andover side, Wayne Merola played a strong game at second base.

North Andover, 3-1

Dave Walsh sent Andover packing for the summer, tossing a sharp five-hitter, fanning six and walking none.

This time around Steve Rathbun was the hard-luck loser for Andover, fashioning the club's third straight five-hitter, whiffing three and walking four. The 14-year-old righthander threw only 77 pitches.

Andover took its only lead of the series in the first inning, as Lary Larrabee reached on a NA error, stole second for his fourth theft of the series and sixth of the entire playoffs, and raced home when Brian Kelly lined a two-out single to centerfield.

North Andover, however, came right.

Winters In Defense Tests

Captain Michael P. Winters, son of Mrs. Mary Martin of Andover, recently participated in Vigilant Overview, a four-day test of worldwide Aerospace Warning and Defense Systems conducted by the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD).

Captain Winters is a pilot at Grand Forks AFB, N.D., and serves with the 48th Bomb Squadron, a part of the Strategic Air Command.

NORAD, a U.S.-Canadian joint command, headquartered at Colorado Springs, Colo., conducts the exercise quarterly to provide a realistic look at how its people and systems perform under attack conditions.

During the exercise, involving more than 19,000 people, approximately 180 NORAD fighter-interceptor aircraft participated in the simulated defense of the North American continent. They were scrambled against target aircraft simulating the role of enemy bombers.

A 1966 graduate of Andover High School, the captain received his B.S. degree in 1970 from Springfield College and was commissioned in 1971 upon completion of Officer Training School at Lackland AFB, Tex. His father is Charles H. Winters of Andover.

back to tie 1-1 with an unearned run in the bottom of the first. Roche reached first base on a dropped third strike, and circled the sacks when Mark Androski ripped a two-out double to the left-centerfield fence.

While Andover couldn't get anything serious started against Walsh, NA registered the eventual winning marker in the second.

Bob Walmsley and Frank Gelinas led with singles. Bouchard erased Walmsley at third on a bounce to Wayne Merola, who stepped on the base, and then Rathbun fanned Rick Camire for the second out.

However, Walsh walked to load the bases and Roche followed with an RBI single to center plating Gelinas. Larrabee uncorked a perfect strike to catcher Brian Kelly on the play, nailing Bouchard trying to make it 3-1.

The final North Andover stirring produced an insurance tally in the fourth, when Frank Gelinas reached second base on a throwing error and came across on Camire's single.

Andover made it interesting in the sixth. Merola was hit by a pitch to open the frame, and Larrabee followed with a single to rightfield. The next two batters whiffed, but Bob Patterson strked a single to center.

Bouchard, gunned down earlier by Larrabee, returned the favor by throwing out Merola at home to end the uprising.

Bob Heidt singled to start the Andover seventh, but he was rubbed out on a fielder's choice before Mark Androski initiated an around-the-horn 5-4-3 doubleplay to include the crown for NA.

No one on either team had more than one hit in the game.

Pete Gravalles beat out a bunt single and stole second for Andover in the third, but he was left stranded.

Merola played well defensively at third base for Andover.

Future

Andover loses six good ballplayers this year, including 15-year-old graduates Larrabee, Stahley, Feeney, Kelly and Gravalles.

Although the 1977 season is now history, three things remain on the Babe Ruth agenda.

The annual team awards banquet will be held in mid-September, as will the Greater-Lawrence League banquet at which time Andover players will be presented trophies for their second place finish.

The team will also hold its annual Fall tryouts for next year's squad sometime after school begins. Further notice will be provided later.

Record

With its 20-11-1 showing this season, Andover is now 86-34-2 over the last four years.

Although it has just two titles to show over the past few years, Andover has placed among the top three teams in its league 13 of the last 14 seasons and has consistently made the playoffs.

Soccer Camp A Success

Many Andover residents have recently returned from a successful first annual Andover Soccer Camp at Phillips Academy.

The Week-long camp, under the direction of local coaches Dave Amundsen of Andover High, Bill Tarbox of Greater Lawrence Vocational school, and Len Emmons of Masconomet Regional High School, was set up to help improve the level of soccer skills in this area.

The camp was attended by 103 students from Eastern Mass and Southern New Hampshire. The Andover participants included Brent Ballard, Chris and Bridan Bedell, Peter Bradford, Eric Brant, Peter Chiklis, Gary Cohen, Imelda Culbert, Dan Donovan, David Donovan, William Donovan, Dwain and Kyle Dorsey, Gerard Doyle, Mark Edgar, Andy Emmert, Neil and Robert Faigel, Jim Gardiner, Carl Gutermann, David Jennings, Tim Jensen, John Kinsky, Craig, Howard and Jamie Lebowitz, Steve Luby, Janice Moody, George O'Brien, Norbert Ohlenbusch, Allan Palmer, Dan Poore, Mark Reed, Eric Ren, Adam and Dan Roberts, David Schroeder, David Sherman, Lyde Sizer, Stefan Wennik, Kevin Wilson, and Tom Wiseman.

Each of these students will bring back to his or her team a little more skill conditioning and knowledge than he or she otherwise would have had, an important consideration as soccer is becoming more competitive.

Although cardinals and many other songbirds inherit a song motif, they must be taught to sing by the male, and they copy his "dialect," according to Massachusetts Audubon. Attempts to teach young birds to sing with a tape recorder have not been successful.

Telecourse Series Continues

Three new television courses have been scheduled by Northern Essex Community College, Haverhill, for the Fall Semester.

Available at Northern Essex are Dimensions in Culture, an anthropological study of different peoples in the world with Dr. Dwayne Merry, noted anthropologist; Writing for a Reason which helps students learn to write effectively at the college level; and Age of Uncertainty, a history of economic ideas and their consequences hosted by Harvard economist John Kenneth Galbraith.

All N.E.C.C. telecourses carry three college credits. Students view each week's "Class" at home and back up viewing with assigned reading and workbook study. Discussion meetings and examinations are scheduled at the college, and the course instructor is available by telephone to answer questions. All telecourse students are regular Northern Essex students and are eligible to use all of the college's facilities.

Modicon Expansion Here Hailed By Dukakis

39 THE TOWNSMAN, AUGUST 25, 1977

A burgeoning demand for Modicon solid state devices for the automatic control of industrial machinery operations and processes has promoted a million dollar expansion that will double the company's production facilities in the Andover Industrial Center, Route 495.

The Modicon decision to stay and grow, rather than seeking new facilities in some other state, was hailed by Governor Michael S. Dukakis as a "heartening affirmation" for his program to encourage such expansions while also attracting new commerce and industry to the Bay State.

"Modicon's rapid growth," he said, "is just one more substantial piece of evidence that Massachusetts is a truly healthy place for business and industry to prosper."

John Blaeser, General Manager of the Gould, Inc. Modicon Division, said the company's expansion, already started, will bring total floor space to more than 150,000 square feet by the end of this month.

Employment, he said, is expected to expand gradually to 500 by December, and to 750 by the end of next year. The company currently employs 400 persons and has a $12 million annual sales volume that is expected to increase by 50 to 100% in the current fiscal year.

Ed Harwood, Modicon's vice president of operations, said the Gould Division is now gearing for production increases that are expected to reflect another 50 to 100 percent increase in sales by 1978 — only 10 years after the company commenced operations. Modicon delivered its first industrial process controller in early 1970.

Formed in 1968 as a closely held firm, Modicon officially became merged last month (July 1) into Gould, Inc., an electrical and industrial products corporation that has an annual sales volume approaching $1.5 billion.

Harwood, who is directly the expansion, said one floor of the division's two-floor operation will provide about 100,000 square feet for manufacturing. Most of the second floor space, he reported, will be occupied as of January by a large new sector for the engineering department, an area for test equipment labs, a large 24 hours-a-day product support service center, and a number of product development computer rooms. Newly refurbished administrative and marketing department offices will be completed in the spring.

Water Decision Lies With North Reading

Andover selectmen voted 3-2 Monday night to come to the aid of Mohammed Khusro and provide him with water through North Reading lines — if the neighboring community agrees.

About half a dozen of Khusro's Jenkins Road neighbors, who have their own wells, were on hand as the town board directed the town manager to write a formal letter to North Reading volunteering to reimburse them for water they would provide to Khusro — provided North Reading rescinds its earlier agreement with Khusro.

They agreed, a couple of years ago to provide him water for "household use," but turned the water off when they found he was also using it for horses in a new 20-stall barn.

Khusro's neighbors had earlier claimed he is running a commercial venture contrary to zoning regulations. They said he boards horses, and also provides lessons and has horse shows, for which he charges.

Selectman Philip Salamone made the motion to approach North Reading and added that details of billing could be worked out between the two town managers.

Selectman Richard Bowen objected, who voted "no" along with Susan Poore, said he couldn't quarrel with the intent of the motion, but objected that "we're asking officials of another town to make our decision for us."

He said he was prepared simply to vote whether to provide Khusro with water or not.

Salamone contended that the "decision" wasn't Andover's anyway — that the decision to turn it on and turn it off had been made by North Reading. As far as Andover is concerned, Khusro bought property that was served by its own wells, as Andover water lines don't extend that far.

The result of the query to North Reading will be presented to the board "at the earliest possible time."

Revaluation

indicated, however, that the officials here seem more interested in the "fair value" than "full value." He said the idea is "to be fair to one another."

The selectmen also called a special meeting for Sept. 7 at the Treatment Plant solely to discuss articles proposed for the warrant by various boards and committees, and asked that articles be given to them in advance of that date if possible.

While official starting date of town meeting still remains at Oct. 3, Austin said Monday night he has indications from the State Attorney General's office that certification of the bylaw change to allow Town meeting any time in October will be forthcoming within the month.

American Yachting

"Yachting in America" is a special exhibit at the Peabody Museum of Salem through Labor Day. It shows the development of American yachting from 1816, when the first American ocean-going yacht "Cleopatra's Barge" was built, to the America's Cup races of the first quarter of the 20th century.

Axelrod To Chair Session

Harry Axelrod of the Sheraton Rolling Green in Andover is chairman of the annual convention of the Massachusetts Hotel-Motel Association to be held Sept. 25-27 at the Red Jacket Inn in Bass River.

Former U. S. Paul Cronin of Andover, president of Sunsav of Tewksbury, will make a presentation on "Super Solar Savings," answer questions on financing and provide a solar exhibit.
